

Dr. Karen Fisher, Senior Associate,

Dr. Karen Fisher brings over 18 years of experience in developing and successfully implementing leadership, management, and sales learning related solutions with global organizations across diverse industries. Karen's success in helping others achieve their goals has to do with her pragmatic and results-oriented approach.

Most recently, Karen served as a National Account Director for The Forum Corporation where she was responsible for business development, consulting services, and senior client relationships. She partnered with her clients to improve performance through conducting needs assessments, developing competency models and curriculums, executive coaching, and sharing industry best-practices. Some of her long-term clients included General Electric, Perkin-Elmer, Stanley Works, The Boston Globe, Genzyme, and UnumProvident.

Prior to The Forum Corporation, Karen worked for Merck & Company as a Manager, Global Leadership Development. Karen started her career working for a division of Johnson & Johnson (J&J) that outsourced health and fitness services. Her responsibilities included managing large accounts such as Johns Hopkins Medical Center and Serono Laboratories as well as providing coaching and training to diverse clients such as Deloitte & Touche, General Motors, Saatchi and Saatchi Advertising, IBM, and Cargill Fertilizer.

Currently, Karen is an Adjunct Assistant Professor at the University of New Hampshire in the Whittemore School of Business and Economics. She teaches Behavior in Organizations, Organizational Leadership and Structure, and Management Skills.

Karen earned a Bachelor of Science in Sports Management from the University of Massachusetts. She earned a Master of Science in Applied Behavioral Sciences from Johns Hopkins University and a Doctor of Education in Human Resources Development from the George Washington University.
